Ideal Customer Profile

The brand's most valuable customer is a highly engaged repeat purchaser who demonstrates strong satisfaction with the brand and limited reliance on discounts.

Key Characteristics:

- Premium Value Tier
- High Previous Purchase Count
- Satisfaction Flag = Positive
- Dependency Score ≤ 1
- Active Subscription Status

Behavioral Traits:

- Purchases frequently throughout the year
- Continues purchasing without heavy promotional incentives
- Provides consistently positive product reviews
- Demonstrates long-term engagement with the brand

Why This Customer Matters:

These customers generate disproportionately high revenue while requiring less promotional spending. They contribute to both profitability and long-term customer lifetime value.

Acquisition Strategy:

1. Build lookalike audiences based on existing premium customers.
2. Prioritize channels that attract repeat purchasers rather than one-time discount seekers.
3. Promote loyalty programs and subscriptions during acquisition.
4. Highlight product quality, exclusivity, and customer experience rather than discounts.

Success Metrics:

- Customer Lifetime Value (CLV)
- Repeat Purchase Rate
- Subscription Conversion Rate
- Average Annual Spend

Trade-Off:

Targeting high-value customers typically increases acquisition costs because these audiences are more competitive. However, the higher lifetime value and lower promotional dependency justify the additional investment.